Same-sex Marriage and Liberalism

Abstract: Same-sex marriage is a necessary condition for liberalism, grounded on Mill's harm principle. Liberalism is an ideology, so it can't debate with ideologies who refuses the harm principle itself, neither with ideologies who assume that liberalism is a swindle with which the governors normatively frame the governed. From a liberal viewpoint, same-sex marriage is required because its exclusion cannot be grounded on any acceptable reason.

Keywords: Same-sex marriage, Liberalism, Harm principle.
