Person-affecting Utilitarianism, Coherence and Circularity. A Final Reply to Magni

Abstract: Magni endorses a utilitarian version of the Narrow Person-Affecting View. This paper is my final reply to Magni's third attempt to meet the objections I have previously raised against his view. I still hold that Magni's view is incoherent in so far as it implies that 'intrinsically better than' is a non-transitive relation. Furthermore, I argue that his new attempt to defend the view against some of my previous objections is circular.

Keywords: Utilitarianism, Circularity, Coherence, Intrinsic value, Transitivity.
