Techniques of Law and Sexuality. Answers for a Debate

Abstract: The essay constitutes a response to the critical observations made by Tamar Pitch, Roberta Dameno, and Francesca Miccoli during their discussions of my two books, La giuridicizzazione del sesso and Identità di genere. In this work, particular attention is given to the issues of the distinction between sexual intercourse and violence, the problem of defining “female” desire, and, finally, Judith Butler’s arguments concerning the rights of transgender individuals.

Keywords: Sexual intercourse, Violence, Desire, Butler.
