

Matteo Bartolomeo

Matteo Bartolomeo, 1966, is partner and CEO of Avanzi, a think tank dedicated to sustainable development and member of the Directors' Committee of Vigeo, the global leading environmental and social rating agency. Matteo holds a degree in Economics and a European Master degree in Environmental Management and Economics. He is currently lecturer at Politecnico di Milano and University of Sassari on Public goods and Environmental Economics.

Matteo has been working for 15 years on sustainable development strategies and policies at macro and micro level, with particular attention to organisational, behavioural and technical innovations. He is author of several publications.