

Adrian Henriques

Adrian is an adviser on corporate responsibility, social accountability and sustainability. His main areas of activity are advice and auditing for companies and other organisations, stakeholder facilitation, research and training. He has developed the economic indicators for the GRI and pharmaceutical sector good practice guidelines for investors. Clients have included Co-operative Financial Services, Adidas, United Utilities and Marks & Spencer as well as DfID, NGOs and social enterprises. He has produced research on social sustainability and taught accountability and social auditing at Warwick University Business School. Adrian has been a Council Member of the Institute of Social and Ethical Accountability and was for five years a member of the Global Reporting Initiative Steering Committee. He is also a member of the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants' Social and Environmental Committee. Adrian is Visiting Professor of Accountability and CSR at Middlesex University Business School. Adrian was formerly Head of Accountability at the New Economics Foundation. He has also worked for the International Society for Ecology and Culture, an NGO campaigning on economic globalisation. For a number of years prior to that Adrian was a management consultant for PriceWaterhouseCoopers in financial services. His publications include: Corporate Truth: the limits to transparency; Focus on Sustainability and its Implications for CSR; and The Triple Bottom Line – does it all add up?