

Alessia Sabbatino

Alessia Sabbatino is a corporate citizenship researcher working for FONDACA – Active Citizenship Foundation since April 2007.

She coordinates the “Master Degree in Corporate Citizenship. Integrated strategies of social responsibility” carried out by FONDACA in partnership with the Sant’Anna School of Advanced Studies in Pisa and the Boston College’s Centre for Responsible Leadership. The Master Degree director is Giovanni MORO.

In September 2007 she has become coordinator of the Global Compact Italian Network Focal Point. She has a University degree in Political Science and a Master Degree in Corporate Citizenship. Her main field of research interest is corporate citizenship, with particular emphasis on the relations between private actors and stakeholders. FONDACA is an institute engaged in research, advanced training, cultural dialogue, advice and mobilization of resources established in 2001 and based in Rome. It aims at contributing to the growth, sharing and better use of the knowledge and scientific information on the emerging phenomenon of citizenships, intended as the fulcrum of democratic dynamism and of the forms of governance of today’s societies; using as a main point of reference civic activism and promoting or supporting partnerships with those public, private and social actors engaged in these practices at a local, regional and international level.
